“ Hey Mom, I don't know what just brung me here! But I miss you tremendously, never thought I would ever have to say those very words. But it was something you begged of us after losing X. Losing you was my biggest loss yet and I know nothing can ever compare to your love. Even when I was hard headed (I still am, and I know you're giving me a mouthful right this moment) your love never wavered! It's crazy how we miss the most craziest things, and how much we take for granted. Because out of all the things I could wish for, I would do anything to have you yelling at me about literally nothing but everything at the same time. Asking you to come back to me is selfish, but yearning for your presence in any way is just a baby boy lost without his guidance! I love you mommy

“ Ann, you always had words of wisdom and encouragement, you welcomed me into your family without knowing anything about me but you gave everyone a chance because you had a heart made of gold. I really respected you and appreciate all that you've done for me, the first Day that I met you, you were so genuine and welcoming. I know you have gone on to do better things but I will never forget you, love you!
