“ I worked with him for over 18yrs. We never had an issue. He was all the time happy and ready to help with anything. We used to share photos of casinos or anything else. On the weekend used to call me through video just to say hello or because wanted to know where to go to get his favorite Mexican foods. At work he used to send us to the store just to get his breakfast or essential kitchen stuff. I was very confident with him because he was there for me all the time. I miss my crazy old friend 🙏 Rest in peace friend.

“ Francis could walk into a room filled with sadness, and he would make sure the atmosphere changed. His smile, his laugh, his jokes, along with his joyful personality, would lighten up the room! I have lots of fond memories of Francis growing up in our neighborhood. I'm glad he was able to display that same joy he had as a kid. We are praying for the family.

“ One of Francis's greatest qualities was his dedication to the people in his life. He placed genuine value on relationships and consistently made an effort to stay in touch with people he met along the way. Seems like Francis knew everyone. He was funny but also had great insights on things going on in the world. Francis was incredibly thoughtful. If he came across something that reminded him of you, a quick call or text would follow. On several occasions, he would swing by my desk, with a baggie of new coffee grounds he thought I might like. He had great sorrow over losing his kids and talked about how hard it was. He deserved better. If wealth were measured by the kindness one showed to others, he would have been an exceptionally rich man. His death is truly a loss for everyone lucky enough to have known him.
