“ Bobby was a unique, highly talented long-time friend. The last time we were together was at his mother’s funeral, but we talked as late as a few weeks ago. Bobby’s talents included his music, where he was truly gifted. With a piano teacher for a mother, he started at an early age and honed his craft throughout the years. He recently commented that he was very happy that he was playing in public again. Bobby had strong ideologies as do I, which meant for some interesting conversations, which were mutually respectful. One of our last conversations was about gun control and police after he heard shots fired in his neighborhood. Bobby loved his mother deeply, he mourned her loss, yet celebrated her life. Bobby also loved Billy, he gushed with joy when talking about him. He was concerned for Billy’s health and asked for prayers for Billy to regain his health. Bob never mentioned that he was seriously ill, so his passing is a complete surprise. Praise be to God for the glory that he bestows on all of us. May God bless Bobby’s soul throughout eternity and welcome him into your kingdom. May your love pass through the hearts of all that Bobby has touched on earth, especially Billy’s, and continue to bring hope and healing to everyone. Through your name we pray.

“ I've known Bob for a really long time and although he sometimes irritated the crap out of me, we remained friends. I love going to his mom Betty,'s house with her homemade goodies lined up all the way around the perimeter. I'll always have special feelings for Bob but I pray that he is now in a place where it no longer matters what other people's opinions are.

“ I met Bob when I was 18 in Duluth. He was a lot of laughs and a big bright personality. He was always welcoming and I had some great conversations with him. He was always positive. Very smart and witty. You will be missed Bob. I hope you're smiling and laughing in Heaven. 🙏💙❤️😊

“ Dear Bob. Funny, focused, kind, challenging, smart, problematic. Witty. Unconventional. Honored to be counted among those who have known him. Praying for his rest among the saints.
